

Spending Two Perfect Days In Coastal Rhode Island

Ocean House

When most people envision coastal Rhode Island, they immediately conjure thoughts of summer cottages around a preppy sailing town like Newport. There's no doubt that the seaside gem famous for this kind of imagery is one of our favorite places to visit. But if you're seeking a spring respite that puts rest, relaxation and Rhode Island charm to the forefront, look no further than the city of Westerly, with its villages of Weekapaug and Watch Hill, that only sits about 50 minutes from Newport. Here's our recipe for enjoying two perfect days there.

After a good night's rest, wake up early for breakfast at Seasons — you won't want to miss its pastry basket. If you discover a lemon scone, claim it quickly. You can thank us later.

Castle Hill Inn's Dining Room

When you finish breakfast, call for the resort's Mercedes house car, because you're off for an adventure. Take the 45-minute ride to Newport, where you can stroll down the Bellevue Avenue Historic District for a look at of some of the state's grandest summer "cottages." In the spring season, The Breakers, Chateau-sur-Mer, The Elms, Marble House &

Rosecliff are open for daily tours. If you make a day of it, take your meals in high style, too. We'd suggest Castle Hill Inn's Dining Room, The Chanler's Spiced Pear (order the lobster, you won't regret it) or The Vanderbilt Grace's Muse. For something a bit more casual, try The Grill at Forty 1st North, downtown.
