NEW ENGLAND THIS FALL:

Elegant Inns Worthy of a Visit

By Julie Vecchione DeSimone

As the lazy days of summer fade and the crisp, autumn air settles in, what better way to extend the vacation season than an escape to New England? A fall foliage trip is made truly memorable by where you choose to stay, so we've handpicked five of New England's finest inns— from a quick jaunt to nearby Connecticut to a longer, scenic drive to Maine—where you're certain to enjoy the annual display of brilliant reds, oranges and yellows in style.

THE CHANLER AT CLIFF WALK

A historic hotel at the start of Newport's famous Cliff Walk, The Chanler boasts 20 uniquely and exquisitely designed rooms to reflect a different historical period or theme. Rooms are separated into distinct categories, including Manor Rooms, Estate Rooms and Ocean Villas. "Newport is perfect in the fall—the air is crisp and the cliff walk offers the most stunning views of the clear blue ocean water, highlighting all of the vibrant fall colors," says General Manager Christine Sullivan. "With the summer rush over, guests can truly appreciate the beauty and history of the destination." Try one of Newport's best fine dining experiences at the Spiced Pear, with breathtaking views of the Atlantic Ocean.
