

TSA-Friendly Hotel Meals To Go

Catching a long flight home from a conference doesn't have to mean choosing between greasy airport grub or bland in-flight options. Such a dilemma may soon be a thing of the past, thanks to several upscale hotels now offering gourmet meals to go, packaged in flight-friendly containers with salad dressings and other liquid components sealed in spill-proof, TSA-approved containers.

The Chanler at Cliff Walk, Newport, R.I.: The hotel's Spiced Pear restaurant offers boxed meals (a choice of two wraps, plus a side salad, fresh fruit and dessert) to guests flying home after checkout.
